Dr. Akins' educational background includes her B.A. in Elementary Education, M.A. in Guidance and Counseling, and Ed.D. in Early and Middle Childhood. She also completed the course work and internship necessary to be a state certified school psychologist.

Dr. Akins' professional experience includes nine years of teaching in public schools and four years in a private Christian school. She has taught kindergarten, first, second, and fourth grades. While in the private school, she also served as the Assistant Principal, gaining administrative experience. In 1988, Dr. Akins opened a private practice to provide educational evaluations and educational therapy interventions for students with learning disabilities.

Dr. Akins brings this range of education, practical experience, and diagnostic testing to assist parents, teachers, administrators, and educational therapists in knowing how to most effectively help children. Her suggestions for helping each child become successful might include a variety of teaching techniques, classroom accommodations, and/or specialized educational therapy interventions.
